The important fact was developed that all the glob-ules were not simultaneously affected. While the cholera epidemic is rapidly abating in Europe a large number of deaths still occur in Italy. On the 1st inst. there were 421 fresh cases and 229 deads. Of this number 136 cases and 56 deaths occurred in Naples, and 52 cases and 30 deaths in Genoa. Since this date there has been a steady decrease in the mortality in this city, which is regaining its usual aspect. Business affairs, however, by reason of the confusion attendant on the plague, are in a very bad condition, and a great commercial crisis is apprenended. Hundreds of bills are protested daily, and the number of business failures is very great. The ignorant populace are greatly incensed against the upper classes on account of a foolish suspicion that they have attempted to poison the former, and numerous attacks on wealthy and influential people have been made. The slums of Naples, which have been such favorable breeding places for the cholera, are to be robuilt, and the Italian Government proposes to grant $1,000,000 for that purpose. tain His Father. [From the London and China Telegraph.] An extraordinary instance of the peculiarities of Chinese notions of justice, as embodied in the law of the land, has occurred at the Mixed Court at Shanghai. An old man, clothed in rags, was brought before Huang and Mr. Giles and charged with attempting to commit suicide by drowning himself in the Soochow Creek. The accused's son, a cleanly-looking youth, appeared to give evidence against his father, and was at once ordered by Huang to go down on his knees before the Bench. Mr. Giles remarked that it appeared to be the Chinese custom, when the son charged his father with any offense, to make him go down on his knees like an accused person, and he thought it best not to interfere. The circumstances of the case were then explained to the Court. It was stated that the son was an assistant in a barber's shop, earning the munificent salary of 900 cash a month, in addition to his food. Out of this he helped to support his father; but the old man was not satisfied with what he got, as his son had promised to let him have 12,000 cash a month —an amount rather difficult for the boy to pay out of a monthly salary of 900 cash. The old man upbraided his son for walking about in good clothes while his poor father was in rags, and announced his intention of committing suicide in consequence of his son's unfilial con-

The son, fearing that the old man would carry out his intention, followed his father to the edge of the Soochow Creek, when the father seized hold of the boy and jumped into the water, dragging his son with him. Luckily, the water was shallow and the boy was strong, so he managed to land both himself and his having heard the story, to the amazement of all the foreigners in Court, ordered the boy who had saved his father's life to be rewarded with 100 blows, Huang explaining to Mr. Giles that it was a principle in Chinese law when a son prosecuted his father to begin by giving anxious to save the boy from his undeserved punishment, explained that the police were the prosecutors in the case, and that it was only at dence; and Huang then graciously remitted his sentence, at the same time handing over the would-be suicide to the fostering care of his son, who will apparently have to maintain Dr. Benecke, of Marburg, communicates to his father out of his slender income of about

> An Amusing Incident. TO THE EDITOR: Many of your readers would robably like a little fun mixed with the gore, therefore I will relate a circumstance that happened while my regiment was laying in camp at Murfreesboro, Tenn., just after the battle of Stone's River. It so happened-as it often did-that our Southern brethren got in our rear and cut our cracker line, and thereby interfered with our mail arrangements so we could not send out or receive any mail. Our Chaplain, Rev. J. H. Lozier, was acting regimental Postmaster at the time, and the boys annoyed him very much by asking him about more, saw the sign, took it down, and added the words, "neither does he care a damn." When the Chaplain returned to his tent there hung his notice, reading as follows: "The Chaplain does not know when the mail will go out, neither does he care a damn." It is hardly necessary to add that he took down his sign. Should this meet the eye of any of my old comrades, I would be pleased to hear from them through THE TRIBUNE or otherwise .- T. G. A BOOK FOR ALL SOLDIERS.

Fifty Years' Observation of Men and Events, Civil and Military.

By E. D. Keyes, Brevet Brigadier-General, U.S.A., and Late Major-General, U.S.V. 1 Volume, 12Mo., 519 Pages, $1.50.

Gen. Keyes was for several years an Aide-de-Camp of Gen. Scott, and was brought into contact with many of the most distinguished characters, civil and military, who have taken a prominent part in American affairs during the last half century. The principal charm of his book consists in personal anecdotes and the revelation of the essential characteristics of eminent men of our own and other countries. His descriptive powers are remarkable, and he appears to possess an intuitive knowledge of character. His references to Gastronomers, Puritans, Orators, Politicians, and Military Men are inimitable and strikingly just. As a delineator of military orperations, especially of some of the chief engagements of the late war, he is not excelled by any writer of the present time.

The Only Authorized and Authentic

LIFE OF GEN. JOHN A. LOGAN,

THE BRILLIANT SOLDIER,

THE SUCCESSFUL GENERAL,

THE DISTINGUISHED STATESMAN.

EVERY PAGE FULL OF ABSORBING INTEREST.

This is a book which has absolutely no equal among the publications of the year, and will take rank among the great literary works of the century. It is a spiendidly-written narrative of one of the most remarkable lives to one history. Gen. Logan's career, even if described in the tamest commonplaces, is a story more fuscinating than any that ever flowed from the pen of Dickens or Dumas. The author of this work—Mr. Gen. Francis Dawson—was thoroughly in love with his subject, and he has made of it a magnificent recital, with not a duil line or chapter from first to last. Everywhere it stirs the blood and rouses the sympathies. Some idea of the character and scope of the work may be obtained by the brief synopsis and
